

ANTI-CRISIS PLAN 2026:

How to Protect Your Savings When Cash Turns Into Useless Paper

Reading time: 5 minutes.

Result: You will understand why traditional saving methods are making you poorer and get your hands on a step-by-step framework to transition your capital into the "active phase."

PART 1. The invisible tax on your stability

Let's talk cold, hard math.

You work hard, set a portion of your income aside, and believe you are building a financial safety net.

That being said, in 2026, the rules of the game have changed fundamentally. Take a look at the figures:

- Official inflation is always 'smoothed out' for reports.

15–25% per year

Real inflation (consumer basket, tech, services, cars) averages 15–25% per year.

What happens to your capital, regardless of its size?

If you just keep money in a bank account or have cash stacked 'under the mattress,' you lose one-fifth of your purchasing power every single year.

You aren't making mistakes.
You aren't investing in scams.
You are just... essentially doing nothing.
And for this lack of action, the economy fines you 20% annually.

You are not an investor. You are a free donor for the system.

PART 2. Three traps of fake security

Why do most people lose money while trying to actively save it?
Because they use last-century tools:

✗ Trap 1: Savings accounts.

The bank gives you 10% APY. Real inflation takes 20%. Your net loss is -10% per year. The bank uses your money to trade the markets at 30%+, giving you crumbs, and keeping the real profit.

✗ Trap 2: Hiding in foreign currency.

A buy-and-hold strategy for fiat is no longer viable. The 2026 dollar is not the same as the 2021 dollar. Currency is a medium of exchange, not a growth asset.

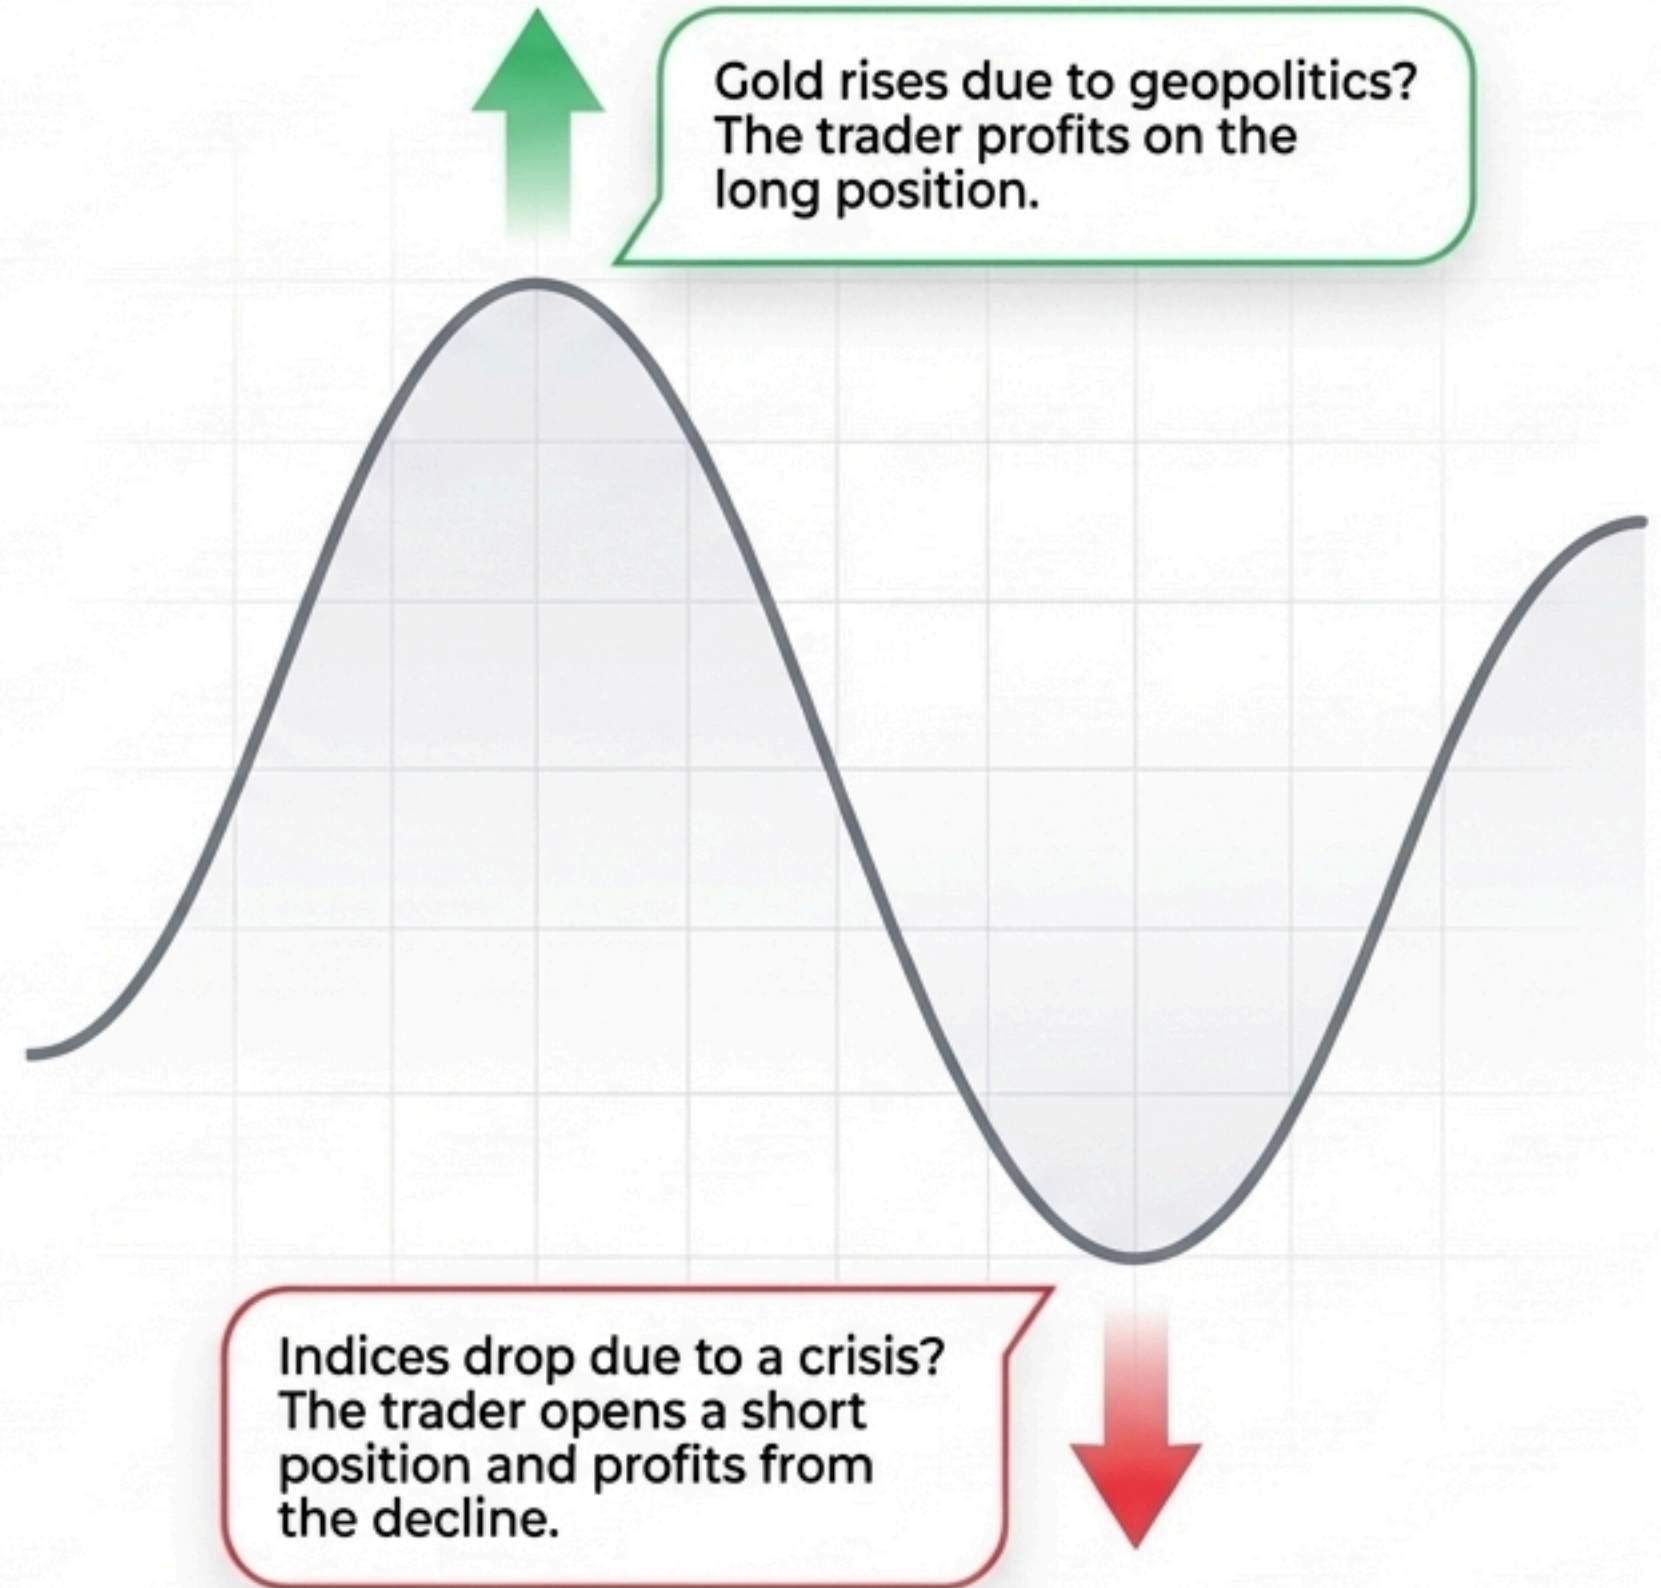

✗ Trap 3: Hype-buying crypto or stocks.

Buying an asset at its peak simply because it's on everyone's lips isn't the true investment. It's a charity for the professionals who are selling to you.

PART 3. How 'smart money' works

Professionals know one key principle. And it is this: to preserve capital, it has to move faster than inflation. And you don't need to be glued to your computer screen 12 hours a day to make it happen.

Modern-day trading is an adaptation skill. Smart money profits from volatility, aka price changes, not from blindly trusting the economy.

You don't need to guess what the future holds.

Your task is to make the most of short, mathematically parcalated market moves while managing risks as if your life depends on it.

By dedicating just one hour of your time a day to chart analysis, you stop being a passive viictim of inflation and take full control into your own hands.

PART 4. Your 7-day action plan

This is how you can stop being a passive victim of inflation:

Step 1: Allocate a "test portion" of capital.

Never bring 100% of your savings to the market. Start with a comfortable percentage to learn the ropes. This is an investment in your new skill.

Step 2: Eliminate starting costs.

The biggest mistake is high broker fees and wide spreads. You need greenhouse conditions where fees don't eat up your profit.

Step 3: Practice in the right environment.

You need clean market pricing and the ability to open small positions to gain experience stress-free.

WHERE CAN YOU FIND THIS ENVIRONMENT TODAY?

At Gerchik & Co, we know that every fraction of a percent makes a difference. We have removed all existing barriers by creating ZERO, an account to give you a hassle-free, transparent head start. Here's why it is an excellent choice for this task:

Zero spreads:

Trade at raw market prices. No hidden broker markups.

Low entry barrier:

Your initial capital is irrelevant. What matters is your decision to take the next step.

Transparency:

You pay a fixed micro-commission per trade. Your math stays predictable.
